Life-Saving Surgeries

KDSP sponsors and facilitates essential medical procedures for people with Down syndrome

Sarah Mazari, age 4 years
Sarah had previously undergone a surgical procedure called posterior sagittal anorectoplasty (PSARP) to correct her diagnosed health condition, "imperforate anus" on 18 July 2019. The final step of her procedure was a reversal of colostomy, whereby in January 2020 Dr. Sohail led the operation to close the hole in her abdomen.

Abdul Haseeb, age 6 years
It had been discovered that Abdul Haseeb's tonsils were bleeding internally. KDSP facilitated his surgery in March 2020, after which he is now able to partake in and enjoy his daily activities.

Drawing Our Dreams

As mothers invest their time and energies in taking care of their children, they often forget to take care of themselves. Making time to relax, recharge and address your own needs is essential as a parent. A contented mother raises a contented child!

KDSP hosted "Drawing our Dreams", a session that took 9 mothers on a journey of self-exploration and self-care through the medium of art. The session was facilitated by Farzeen Ali, Co-Founder and CEO at KDSP who is also an Art in Therapy Practitioner.

Career Day

Teachers of the Tailored Assistance Program (TAP) organized a Career Day for students followed by a donut party. Students enthusiastically dressed up according to their favorite professions – we saw doctors, teachers, chefs, business owners and even an army officer! It was an exciting chance for students to interactively explore their field of interest as an extension of the academic and life skills program.

10 Quick Tips for Home Schooling

As teachers of children with Down syndrome, we are acutely aware of the importance of reinforcement and repetition for learning and growth. Children are constantly learning from their surroundings therefore parents must reinforce home learning plans to ensure steady progress and development. Our Early Preschool Experience Program (EPEP) teachers have developed an extensive homeschool plan for students with a step-by-step guide for parents using readily available resources at home.

Below are 10 quick tips for home-schooling parents:

1. Build a routine. A fixed schedule is conducive to the child's learning.
2. Identify how your child learns. All children learn differently; figure out how your child learns, what motivates them and what their strengths are.
3. Wait 10 seconds. After a request has been made, allow 10 seconds of wait time before expecting a response. Interrupting the processing time short circuits their thinking and can lead to frustration.
4. Incorporate and encourage total communication. Throughout all daily activities, use and accept auditory, gestural and visual forms of communication.
5. Use visual cues and schedules. Most students with Down syndrome are strong visual learners; capitalize and reinforce information with this strength.
6. Avoid closed questions. Encourage more than one word utterances by allowing your child the freedom to express themselves.
7. Ensure you are face-to-face with good eye contact when giving directions. This will help your child take cues from your facial expressions.
8. Ask your child to repeat information and instructions back to you. This gives your child an opportunity to participate in the conversation, rather than it being one sided.
9. Use simple and familiar language. Stay just one step ahead of the child's level.
10. Be patient. Your child's receptive language skills may be more advanced than their expressive language skills. Give them time to respond and pay attention to their body language. Children have more than one way to communicate.

Employee Engagement @ KDSP

Trainer and life coach Mr. Sohail Zindani delivered a Family Network Relations training to KDSP employees. The session was both insightful and thought-provoking, leaving the attendees with the know-how to communicate effectively with colleagues, Family Network members and other external stakeholders.

On a separate occasion, in response to the rapid spread outbreak of COVID-19, KDSP held a special healthcare session for its employees conducted by Dr. Syed Rehan Amin to educate the team about the virus and the correct safety precautions to follow.

Working in the age of COVID-19

KDSP has proactively mobilized its team and resources to provide services through alternate channels in compliance with the social distancing guidelines, while also striving to maintain the same level of productivity and enthusiasm in these uncertain times.

We are regularly monitoring the government's updates regarding COVID-19 and it is prudent to assume that the 'home office' will be a mainstay for some time to come. To ensure our operations run seamlessly and all crucial information is available and accessible to our stakeholders, we have taken the following steps:

- KDSP's landline, cellphone and email are fully operational, allowing information seekers to make contact with ease
- Our Early Childhood Intervention team is offering therapies as per schedule through voice and video calls
- Our Education & Training team is creating home-based activity plans for students and helping parents implement them
- Our Enrichment & Skills Development team is creating flexible new programs for members and their families
- Our Family Support team is virtually addressing the needs and concerns of families
- Our Awareness team is using social media platforms to update our audience on relevant information

Parent's Corner

Dear KDSP,

On 2nd August 2017, I gave birth to a girl, Silah, who was born with Down syndrome. After discovering KDSP, my husband and I were in awe at the selflessness and devotion of the people here. My first thought was perhaps it is all a façade for parents that visit, but as we got to know the organization more, we realized we were so wrong. There was no façade; the empathy, concern and care we received from each department was 100% genuine.

My daughter started receiving Early Childhood Intervention therapies when she was 1.5 months old. From the get-go, our daughter was provided with highly competent therapists, an empathetic environment, and detailed home-learning plans, while my husband and I received immense support from the family group sessions.

When she was older, Silah was enrolled in the Early Preschool Experience Program (EPEP). Even though she wasn't able to take regular classes, the teachers never made her feel left out. They consistently provided us with home-learning plans, so our daughter could be at par with her classmates whenever she returned.

KDSP shares the credit of everything my daughter has achieved. She has come so far because of the team effort of everyone at KDSP and us, her parents.

– Talkhees Adil

A mother who, after Allah SWT, relies completely on KDSP for my daughter's bright future
